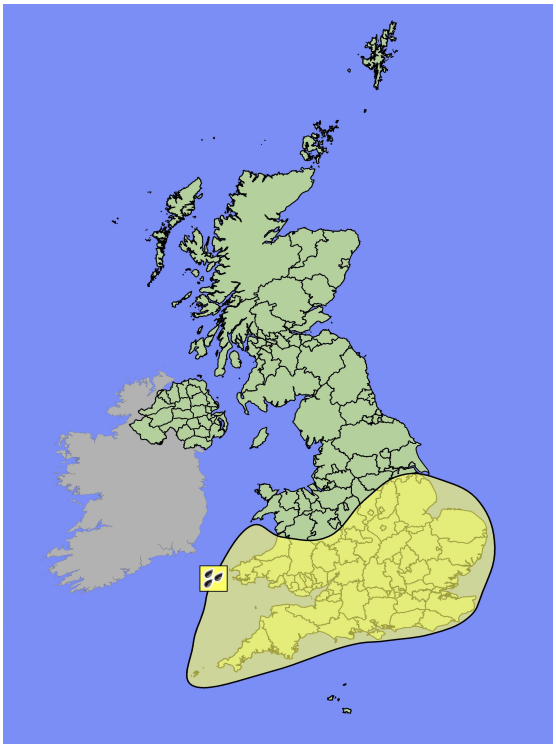
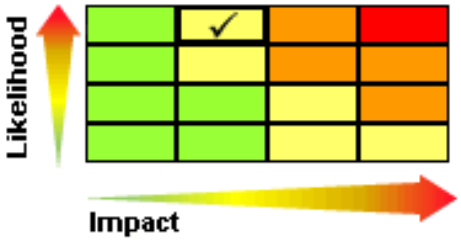
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Another active frontal system is affecting many parts of England and Wales today. 24 hour rainfall totals for Christmas eve are likely to be 10-20 mm quite widely, with 30 mm possible locally. Following heavy rainfall during previous days and given already saturated ground this rain is likely to lead to further surface water problems. The main rain area will clear away northeastwards during the day, but with showery conditions following in its wake.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 00:05 on Mon, 24th Dec 2012 until 23:59 on Mon, 24th Dec 2012

Further spells of rain are expected to affect parts of England and Wales during Christmas Eve. Given already saturated ground from recent rainfall, the public should be aware of the risk of further localised flooding and disruption to travel.
